Descendants of Matthew Taylor

Generation No. 1

1) MATTHEW[1] TAYLOR was born Abt. 1555 in England. His first wife was Elizabeth Chute. They had several children but their 3 oldest boys died young.
   a) George Taylor

   MATTHEW[1] TAYLOR married second MARGARET FREELAND. [Smith, above, states Matthew was son of John and Elizabeth (Chute) Taylor which agrees with lineage as provided by Judge John Taylor in 1886 but based on other sources and ages it seems just as likely he was born of Margaret, giving the reason for naming his oldest daughter Margaret]
   Children include:
   b) MATTHEW TAYLOR was born 1591. His wife's name is unknown. A description of the Arms he used includes the Freeland Arms in the 3rd quarter, lower left. If Margaret was not his mother, he would not use them. They had one known child:
      i) MARGARET TAYLOR was born about 1634. She married THOMAS WHITE in 1656. They had one known child:
         (1) JOHN WHITE
   c) JOHN[2] TAYLOR, b. December 1611, Kent, England; d. 1683, Kent, England. If older brother Matthew had Margaret as a mother, so did John.

Generation No. 2

c) JOHN[2] TAYLOR (MATTHEW[1]) was born December 1611 in Shadochurst, Kent, England, and died 1683 in Kent, England. He married MARY about 1650. She was born in Kent, England around 1615. John was buried on 21 November 1683 in St. Dunstan, Yorkshire, England.

Notes for JOHN TAYLOR:

1 The Genealogy of Judge John Taylor, 1886 (The name of the family of Taylor, which settled in Middletown, New Jersey, in the latter part of seventeenth century -- 1692 -- had been subject to the mutations and corruptions so often met with in ancient families. The ancestor (according to Burke) was the Norman Baron Taillefer, who accompanied William the Conqueror and had a position near his person in his invasion of England, and fell in his presence in the van of his army at the Battle of Hastings, on Saturday, October 14, 1066.

Taillefer's family received from the Conqueror large landed estates in the county of Kent, England, as his portion of the spoils. Hanger Taylefer, his descendant, held lands in the tenure of Ospringe, county of Kent, A.D. 1256, and from him about one hundred years later, we have John Taylor in the homestall in Schodoschurst, county of Kent, and from him the possession is perfectly traced through Willliam, John, William, John, John, John, Mathew to Edward the Emigrant. William Taylor, son of John of the homestall (homestead) in Schodoschurst, was living in the time of King Richard II., Henry IV., and Henry V (1377 to 1422), and was succeeded by his son John Taylor of Schodoschurst, who died about the fifth year of Edward IV, and was succeeded by his son William of Schodoschurst, who married Joane, daughter of Henry Gibban, and died 1493. He was succeeded by his son John Taylor, in the time of Richard III and Henry VII. (1483 to 1508), who married Margaret, daughter and sole heir of Humphrey de Fairsted, and acquired the estates and arms of De Fairsted. His son John married Thomasine, daughter of John Isaac of Levington, Sussex county. He died 1560, leaving daughter Alice and a son, John Taylor, who was Lord of the Manor of Schodoschurst, three of whose descendants became barons. Thomas created a baron January 16, 1665; his son Sir Thomas, born August 10, 1657, died 1696, left an only child, Sir Thomas, born 1693, died 1720, unmarried, and the barony became extinct. John Taylor, Lord of the Manor of Schodoschurst, married Elizabeth Chute, daughter of Philip of Bethersden, county of Kent, and had a son, Mathew Taylor, who settled in Sussex county. By his first marriage he had a son Mathew, born A.D. 1591, who had a daughter Margaret, born 1634, and married Thomas White, in 1656. They left a son, John White. For his second wife Mathew Taylor married Margaret, only daughter and heiress of Richard Freeland, Esq. and acquired the Freeland Estate and Arms. He was succeeded by his son, John Taylor, born in 1611, died in 1683. He left two sons, Mathew and Edward Taylor. . . .

* * *

(Family connected by marriage to] Sir George Carteret, proprietor of East New Jersey, under whose influence the Taylor family acquired large landed estates in Monmouth county, in that colony."

2 "Taylor of Monmouth County," Historical Miscellany, pp. 43-4

Children of JOHN TAYLOR and MARY are:

i) EDWARD[3] TAYLOR, b. Abt. 1650, Brighouse, Yorkshire, England; d. 1710, Garrett's Hill, Middletown, Morris Co? Monmouth County, NJ.

ii) MATTHEW TAYLOR, b. October 15, 1653 England; d. 1688, Probably New York or New Jersey.

. Notes for MATHEW TAYLOR:

1 The Genealogy of Judge John Taylor, 1886: "Mathew Taylor, born 1655, the son of John Taylor, born 1611, was engaged with his cousin, John White, at New York, in purchasing lands in New Jersey from the Indians, through the influence of his connection with Sir George Carteret. A deed, dated November 19, 1681, conveys from Powark, Cowalamuck, and other Indians, to the Lady Carteret, in trust for Mathew Taylor of New York, and others, a large tract of land in Somerset county, being in depth four miles on both sides of the north branch of the Raritan river, at its junction with the south branch. Mathew Taylor died in 1688, and by his last will, made in 1687, bequeathed his property to his brother Edward, then residing in London."

2 "Taylor of Monmouth County," Historical Miscellany, pp. 43-45

Generation No. 3

i) EDWARD[3] TAYLOR (JOHN[2], MATTHEW[1]) was born Abt. 1650 in Brighouse, Yorkshire, England, and died 1710 in Garret's Hill, Middletown, Monmouth Co., NJ. His Will was Proved 28 February 1710, Middletown, Monmouth County, NJ. He married CATHARINE DE CARTERET (about 1677 in London per Stone). She was born 1652 in Middletown, Monmouth Co., NJ.

(Wrong) Notes for EDWARD TAYLOR:

Edward Taylor inherited property in New Jersey from his brother while he was living in London. He came to New Jersey in 1692.

Called "of Briggs House, York County, England, residing in London" (this may have been in Mathew's will, which has been disputed as actually referencing Edward Taylor of Monmouth Co.) Settled Garret's Hill, Middletown, New Jersey, in 1692 having succeeded to the property of his brother, Mathew.

1 The Genealogy of Judge John Taylor, 1886: "Edward Taylor came over from London in 1692 and settled at Garrets' Hill, where his descendants, in 1880, still occupied a portion of the land he then acquired. Garrets' Hill, so designated from the first settlement of the country, but in later years called by the pilots "Pigeon Hill," is a prominent landmark seen from all parts of the lower harbor of New York. . . . It is situated about two miles easterly from the village of Middletown. The old Taylor homestead mansion, built in 1729 by George, son of the Emigrant, stands close under the hill on the easterly side, and in 1876 was occupied by a lineal descendant of "the first man." It was then in good condition, still exhibiting the old pictured Dutch tiles in the fireplace and other characteristics of the early day in which it was erected. . . .
"Edward Taylor, the Emigrant son of John and Mary, born about 1650, married Catherine ---. He was called "of Briggs House, York county, England, residing in London." Having succeeded to the property of his brother Mathew, in New Jersey, who died 1688, [this is wrong – Matthew's will left his NJ property to his brother Samuel] and having himself made purchases of land in the vicinity of Garrets' Hill, he came over with his family and settled there in 1692. He appears from the records to have made additional purchases of land in that vicinity, and became a large land holder. There he died. Scraps of manuscript, apparently in his handwriting, give the date of birth of his children thus: "Edward, August 8, 1678; Hannah, January 16, 1680; George, December 16, 1684; William, October 25, 1688; John, June 19, 16-- (manuscript imperfect); Joseph, probably born in New Jersey."

2 "Taylor of Monmouth Co.," Historical Miscellany, pp. 43-45 "Among those who very early followed the original Patentees and Associates, in the settlement of Middletown, was Edward Taylor, whose name immediately proclaims him an Englishman. His parentage, whatever may have been claimed to the contrary, is yet unknown, as likewise his English home.

His descendant, the late Asher Taylor, Esq., was a most industrious, conscientious and well-informed antiquary and genealogist, and perhaps, the pioneer in this field in Monmouth County. Boasting, as he did, that he descended from the best of Monmouth stock, it is not surprising that he rescued many interesting facts concerning his progenitors. In tracing out his immediate family, he claimed that Edward Taylor, the founder of the American family, was the son of John, and the brother of Matthew Taylor, a New Jersey Proprietor. That he, Edward Taylor, through this ancestor, John Taylor was the direct descendant of Baron Taillefer, a follower of William, the Conqueror, who died on the battle-field of Hastings, 1066, and that between the said John Taylor, his supposed father, and the Baron Taillefer, there were eight generations.

The claim to this ancient pedigree rests upon the fact that Matthew Taylor, who died in New York, in 1688, was thought to be the descendant of this family, and supposed to be the brother of Edward Taylor, who settled in Middletown. It is not disputed that Matthew Taylor was of the family above alluded to, but it is impossible to find any evidence that he was in any way related to Edward Taylor, of Middletown. The worthy Asher Taylor cites, in evidence of the kinship of these parties, a will recorded, in New York, that of Matthew Taylor, dated Feb. 20, 1687/8. He claims that after appropriating ten guineas to buy his friend Manning a mourning ring, he, Matthew Taylor, wills the residue of his property to his brother, Edward, residing in London, with reversion to Edward's son George. As a matter of fact, the will states, that, after appropriating twenty shillings for Capt. Manning to buy a mourning ring, and the sum of £20 for his two executors, he leaves the residue of his property to his loving brother Samuel Taylor, residing in London, with reversion to Samuel's son George."

footnote: Many years ago, during the last decade of his life, Asher Taylor, No. 285, of this pedigree, allowed me to copy his notes on the Taylor family. These constitute a large portion of this Taylor genealogy, subjected to corrections, additions and rearrangement. Mr. Hiram E. Deats likewise published this Asher Taylor genealogy, with memoranda of the Taylor intermarriages, in his magazine, 'The Jerseyman,' Vol. VIII, No.1, and succeeding numbers.

How this error could have occurred it is idle to speculate, and while it destroys the claim to an English pedigree, it still leaves the American family a record rich in fullness, historic interest, and one of which they may well be proud.

If any further evidence is wanting that it was a mistake to assign Edward Taylor as the heir of Matthew, and that it was following Matthew's decease, and in the year 1692 that he came to America, it may be found, in the old Town Book, of Middletown which records his, (Edward's), cattle-mark, in 1684, and in the Book of Land Patents, at Perth Amboy, in which are recorded grants,
Jan. 13, 1692, of two tracts of land of 100 acres, in Middletown;
Dec. 28, 1685 a tract of 100 acres;
July 27, 1686, a tract of 160 acres in Middletown;
1687: another tract of 150 acres.

It also follows that most of his children were born here, and not in the mother country. Of the life of Edward Taylor, the First, little if anything is known. He died in the year 1710, after having accumulated a large estate, principally in lands, which were divided among his children. They were started in life prosperously, and each and all improved his condition, so that the family at once became prominent and opulent. The few writings of the first comer, that are in existence, prove that he was intelligent and educated, and that he belonged to the highest class that migrated to our shores in the early days of its colonization. (Whoever the author of these notes was, he makes a major error in disallowing John as Edward's father. The Matthew of the NY Will was definitely not Edward's brother; likewise, there is no evidence that he was a son of John Taylor

1 The Genealogy of Judge John Taylor, pp. 12-16: "Edward . . . settled in the upper part of Monmouth county, at Colts Neck, in town o f Freehold. Many of the descendants went to the "new country" in the State of New York and in the State of Ohio, and thence have removed to western and southern cities and States, and most of them have become useful, prosperous citizens of good character -- some of them filling places of distinction. None of them, so far as we can learn, have ever been convicted of a crime under the laws of their country."
"Edward, by his will, gave to his eldest son a silver mug brought by his father from England, which was said to have been a complimentary award for some special service. It was reported that the mug had been melted down and a modern cup made of it, but we have been informed that the mug is safe in the possession of Edward Taylor of Upper Freehold, the sixth Edward from and including the Emigrant."
